However, Meetings may be validly convened by the shareholders themselves at the time of the meeting and held if all of the issued shares with voting rights are in attendance, even if the formalities required for their convening have not been complied with. The Financial Market Commission must be notified of the holding of any Shareholders' Meeting in the manner, at the times and within the periods determined by law or by the Financial Market Commission. For the holding of a Shareholders' Meeting, the Company may establish systems that allow remote participation and voting, provided that such systems duly safeguard the rights of the shareholders and the correctness of the voting process.
