November 16, 2026 – With the goal of reclaiming public spaces and promoting community life, Enel launched its La Cancha Nos Une program, an initiative to renovate multi-use sports courts in various municipalities across the Metropolitan Region, upgrading their lighting systems with highly energy-efficient LED technology while also refurbishing these community gathering places to encourage sports and family recreation.

The first project took place in the municipality of Recoleta, where new lighting was installed at the multi-use sports court at 500 Nicolás de Garnica. The opening included recreational activities for residents, as well as a ceremony celebrating the revitalization of this community space.

The project aims to restore these spaces as gathering places for the community. Installing energy-efficient LED lighting makes it possible to extend hours of use, improve conditions for sports and recreation, and contribute to a better quality of life for residents.

This program grew out of the community-based work the company carries out through the Copa Enel. It includes restoring sports facilities that play a key role in local neighborhoods, transforming them once again into gathering places for the community, sports, and family recreation.

Between November 2026 and February 2027, La Cancha Nos Une plans a total of five renovations of multi-use sports courts, along with community events to mark the reopening of the renovated facilities.

These events will include sports, cultural, and recreational activities designed to encourage participation by children, young people, and families, with the goal of continuing to strengthen the connection between sports, community, and sustainability while highlighting spaces that are part of the daily lives of thousands of people.
